New year, new resolution

New Year's resolutions aren't a new invention, people have been making promises for the new year ahead for thousands of years.

The first New Year's resolutions were made the ancient Babylonians around 4,000 years ago. They made promises to the gods to pay their debts and return any borrowed objects. If they kept to their word, their (pagan) gods would bestow favour on them for the coming year. But if not, they would fall out of the gods' favour.

The ancient Romans had a similar practice after emperor Julius Caesar established 1 January as the beginning of the new year. January, the month named for Janus the two-faced god whose spirit inhabited doorways and arches, had special significance for the Romans. Believing that Janus symbolically looked backwards into the previous year and ahead into the future, the Romans offered sacrifices to the deity and made promises of good conduct for the coming year.

For early Christians, the first day of the new year became the traditional occasion for thinking about past mistakes and resolving to do and be better in the future.

Today, instead of making promises to the gods, most of us make resolutions to ourselves that focus on self-improvement. While resolutions are made with the best intentions, most of us will never achieve them.

Did you know that 17 January is the international 'Ditch New Year's Resolutions Day'?

"I hope that in this year to come, you make mistakes. Because if you are making mistakes, then you are making new things, trying new things, learning, living, pushing yourself, changing yourself, changing your world. You're doing things you've never done before, and more importantly, you're doing something."

TOASTMASTERS

According to American research, as many as 45 percent of people make New Year's resolutions, but only 8 percent are successful in achieving their goals. Most resolutions are broken by mid-February.

Despite the high failure rate, most of us will no doubt continue to make resolutions each year.

What's your New Year's Resolution?
Can Toastmasters help you achieve it?

Pathways is here – what does that mean?

Pathways was launched in Australia in December 2017, bringing a fresh approach to Toastmasters' education program.

What is Pathways?

Toastmasters introduced Pathways to modernise its education program.

The traditional education program has served Toastmasters for many years, but much of its content hadn't been updated since the 1970s. Pathways is not a departure from the current program, but is a modernised learning experience to reflect the changing global society. Pathways offers more benefits and more opportunities to learn, grow and meet personal and professional goals.

What can I learn?

Pathways offers 10 learning paths. All paths are based on one of five communication and leadership disciplines and include public speaking. Nine of the 10 paths are a combination of communication and leadership, with one path focused solely on public speaking.

When do I have to start Pathways?

The traditional program, comprising the Communication and Leadership tracks, will remain until the middle of 2020.

It's up to you whether you start Pathways now or later. But it is a good time to get acquainted with Pathways and set the goals you want to achieve before the traditional program closes.

The International Speech Contest

What's the point? Really? Why put yourself through all the angst that comes with a contest – the hours of work, the nerves, the stress of winning and having to go to the next level?

By Greg Kennedy DTM

The point is that the contests DO make you work, DO test your nerves and DO give you the opportunity to speak at a higher level. If you want to get better at speaking before an audience, enter contests.

You'll get far better far faster than if you only do the occasional speech at club meetings. There's entire books written on this subject but here are a few ideas.

Here's some things to consider (in no particular order):

- Have something to say that you believe is important. If you don't think the message is important then it's unlikely that others will either. Ideally, something that has made a positive difference in your life – an event, a person who has changed the way you think, etc. Stories are the key here. This comes with a warning – don't make yourself the hero in the story. It's not about you becoming the Messiah and everybody should be like you. Make someone else the hero.
- Related to the point above, be wary of preaching or delivering a lecture to your audience. Have a strong message but offer it as a gift so that the audience can connect with it on their terms and take away what they wish. One way to gauge this is to print out the speech and let someone else read it.

- The key to any successful presentation is connection. You need to make a connection for your audience to receive the gift of the message. There are three connections to make:
 1. between the audience and you;
 2. between the audience and the message; and
 3. between you and your message.You create the first two connections and you show the third.
- Take a look at the judging sheet*. There's a list of items the judges are looking for and a brief explanation of the judging criteria. If you're unsure as to how to create connections 1. and 2. above, the judging sheet gives you some clues. Broadly speaking, the first three rows relate to CONTENT. This is about connecting with the audience's heads using a well-structured, effective and valuable speech. The other rows on the sheet are, broadly speaking, about connecting with the audience's EMOTIONS. Read through the judging sheet before, and after, you start designing your speech.

- Print out your speech with each revision so you can keep refining it, and so you can show it to someone else. Keep practicing it and time yourself each time. You want to get it under seven minutes when you're practicing at home. The red timing light comes on at 7 minutes and you still have 30 seconds to finish but you'll want to have a little time spare to pause for effect, allow the audience to laugh at your humour and maybe remember what you were going to say.
- And practice, practice, practice.

Good luck!

Limber up for the Evaluation & International Speech contests

Miranda Toastmasters Club's annual Evaluation and International Speech contests are scheduled to take place on Tuesday, 20 February 2018.

It's time to dust off your competition skills and show off the public speaking skills you work so hard to perfect.

Winners of the Club Evaluation Contest have the potential to advance through the Area, Division and District contests. And as its title suggests, the International Speech Contest could take the winner all the way to the semifinal and the World Championship of Public Speaking®.

What do you need to know to prepare and present your best material?

International Speech Contest

Contestants present a five to seven minute speech on any subject they choose.

Contestants must create their own speeches and the contest must be substantially original. A maximum of twenty-five percent of the speech may be devoted to quoting, paraphrasing or referencing another person's content. And if others are quoted, then the referenced content must be identified during the speech. Props may be used.

Judging criteria

Contest judges assess each speech according to a strict criteria. Judges will score a speech out of a possible 100 points based on three main elements.

To help you prepare, we've provided the value of each element:

1. Content

Value = 50%

- a) Speech Development: Structure, organisation, support material
- b) Effectiveness: Achievement of purpose, interest, reception
- c) Speech Value: Ideas, logic, original thought

2. Delivery

Value = 30%

- a) Physical: Appearance, body language, speaking area
- b) Voice: Flexibility, volume
- c) Manner: Directness, Assurance, Enthusiasm

3. Language

Value = 20%

- a) Appropriateness: To speech purpose and audience
- b) Correctness: Grammar, pronunciation, word selection

Timing: The length of the Speech for the contest is 5 to 7 minutes.

Contestants will be disqualified if the Speech is less than 4 minutes 30 seconds or more than 7 minutes 30 seconds. So, it's critical to stay within time.

Evaluation Contest

For the Evaluation Contest, Contestants observe a five to seven minute test speech and then present a two to three minute Evaluation on that speech.

The test speech is usually delivered by a Toastmaster from another Club.

At the conclusion of the test speech, all contestants leave the room and have five minutes to prepare an evaluation.

One by one, Contestants will be called into the room to deliver their Evaluation. Contestants may remain in the room once they've completed their evaluation speech.

Judging criteria

Contest judges assess each Evaluation according to a strict criteria. Out of a possible 100 points, Judges will measure each Evaluation on four elements: The value of each element is as follows:

40% for Analytical Quality: Clear, focused

30% for Recommendations: Positive, Specific, Helpful

15% for Technique: Sympathetic, Sensitive, Motivational

15% for Summation: Concise, Encouraging

Timing: The length of the Evaluation is 2 to 3 minutes.

Contestants will be disqualified if the Evaluation is less than 1 minute 30 seconds or more than 3 minutes 30 seconds.

Contestant eligibility

To be eligible to participate in any contest, a Contestant must be a paid member of the Club and have completed at least six speech projects in the Competent Communication manual or have earned a Certificate of Completion in Levels 1 and 2 of any path in Toastmasters Pathways.

Meeting roles explained

At each meeting, Members participate by performing various roles to ensure the smooth running of the meeting, while honing their public speaking skills

To help members better understand the requirements of each role, the Miranda Toastmasters Assignment Guide was created. This guide is an essential tool for all members, and in particular new members, to help them prepare for their assigned meeting roles.

There are four major assignments and eight secondary assignments on the Miranda Toastmasters meeting agenda.

The major assignments are Chairman, Table Topics Master, Toastmaster and Master Evaluator. The agenda is controlled by the members carrying out these major roles.

Here is an abbreviated description of some of the meeting assignments. The remaining assignments will be published in next month's SPEAK UP.

Chairman: The Chairman controls and sets tone the meeting. Chairing a meeting is an important and sometimes challenging task.

The Chairman, with the aid of a 'run sheet', ensures the meeting agenda is followed and introduces the members undertaking meeting roles. The Chairman announces when it's time to have a break after the first session and formally closes the meeting at the end of the meeting.

Invocation: The invocation is to invoke Toastmasters into some form of action or thought. It can take the form of a short prayer or an inspirational message that will motivate those present. The Invocation should be between one to two minutes.

Loyal and Second Toast: There is two parts of the Toast; the Loyal Toast, followed by the Second (or general) Toast.

The Loyal Toast is always to Australia. The subject of Second Toast is at the discretion of the member.

The member delivering the Toast ensures all glasses are filled and invites everyone to stand.

The Loyal Toast is delivered, followed by the Second Toast. Immediately nominate the subject of the Toast, deliver a short preamble with two or three points supporting the worthiness of your subject, pause, encourage the audience to follow you by saying something like, "please raise your glasses" as you raise your glass high. Pause, repeat the subject of your Toast and take a drink from your glass. When the audience has finished taking a drink, ask the audience to sit.

Welcome to guests: This is an opportunity to formally welcome guests to the Toastmasters meeting. The Toastmaster performing this role will provide an overview of why guests are important to Toastmasters, what the guest is likely to hear and see during the meeting and most importantly ensure that the guest enjoys the evening.

Table Topic Master: The role of Table Topics Master is a major assignment in the meeting. The Table Topic Master presents the Table Topics session for the evening.

Table Topics provides an opportunity to practice impromptu speaking and 'thinking on your feet', which we each use every day.

The Table Topics Master will give a brief overview of what to expect in the session and explain that guests are welcome to participate. A topic will be announced and then a Toastmaster will be nominated to speak to the topic. Table topics are designed to promote better listening, better thinking and better impromptu speaking.

The time allocated for the response is 60 seconds.

... to be continued. More roles will appear in the February SPEAK UP
